Sometimes you find yourself needing to turn a long, skinny fabric tunnel with a closed end: perhaps you are making a belt, or a bow-tie. And perhaps the fabric is too stiff or too fancy to poke the claw of your loop turner through. Here, we show you a quick and easy way to turn a closed tunnel without piercing the fabric.

Step 1

You have a loop turner and a sewn closed tunnel (in this case, a bow tie).

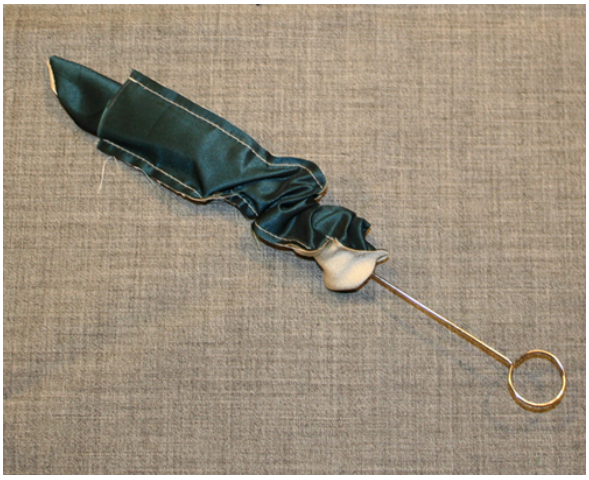
Step 2

Turn inside the closed part of the tunnel.

Step 3

Push loop turner through tunnel toward open end.

Step 4



Keep pushing!

Step 5

Turn tunnel completely and continue your project.
